Post-War Program

TROOP TRAINING IN EUROPE

BY LT. GEN. C. R. HUEBNER, USA
Commander, U. S. Army, Europe

THE objective of all training in the European Command is the qualification of all individuals and units for the efficient performance of occupational duties. Instant readiness to assume responsibility for and accomplish effectively all foreseeable tasks is imperative. Constant adherence to highest standards of discipline, and the progressive training of individuals and units for operations under unified command are the principal intermediate objectives of the training programs.

Lt. Gen. Huebner

In addition to normal training of the 1st Infantry Division, the US Constabulary, separate tactical units, the Service Forces and the Air Forces, specific training programs conducted throughout the year include apprentice training, driver and motor maintenance, movements by air, qualification and competitions in arms, ceremonies, troop information and education, and training of civilian components.

The operation of service schools, the independent training center for Negro troops, and the development of a special field training area for ground forces are three important training activities within this Command.

In the European Command, as elsewhere throughout the Army, troop and unit schools are conducted as normal training responsibilities of all commanders. In addition, certain other service schools are directed and supervised by the EUCOM Headquarters. At present these schools and their locations are as follows:

Ordnance—Eschwege
Quartermaster—Darmstadt
Signal—Ansbach
US Constabulary—Sontheim
Medical Training Center—Nurnberg
Band Training—Kafertal
Intelligence—Oberammergau
Troop Information and Education—Budin-gen.
Finance—Friedburg
Engineer—Murnau.

The general mission of these schools requires the original training of specialists, the training in requirements directly related to occupation duties and appropriate refresher training. As far as possible, school training activities do not duplicate instruction available in the Zone of the Interior. Special emphasis is placed upon the development of officers and non-commissioned officers in preparation for examination and promotion as directed by policies of the Department of the Army. Wherever necessary, literacy training is a part of the on-duty school training program.

Policy on Promotions of Reserves Approved

Following more than two years' preparation, the Army's peacetime promotion program for officers of the Organized Reserve Corps was released this week.

It is designed as a long range plan to fulfill six major objectives. These are:

1. Bring officers into various grades at ages commensurate with mobilization requirements.
2. Be as uniform as possible for all components of the AUS.
3. Produce the proper number of officers in each grade for mobilization.
4. Advance best qualified officers and retard or separate those not up to an acceptable standard.
5. Furnish adequate incentive to insure that a sufficient number of proper type officers will remain active and interested.
6. Be effective administratively and insure the greatest return for available funds.

To do this, the new Army regulations create an Active Reserve, an Inactive Reserve, whose members actually will be quite active, and an Honorary Reserve, newly established. In the latter two categories, no retirement benefits result from service.

The Honorary Reserve will consist of officers of the Officers' Reserve Corps, only without any subdivision. The Reserve officers in this group are those whose service has been honorable and:

- (1) Who have reached the maximum age-in-grade for the Active Reserve or Inactive Reserve, provided they have completed a total of twenty years' service in any component of the Army of the United States, providing they apply for such transfer; or
- (2) Who, upon completing a total of twenty years' service in any component of the Army of the United States, apply for transfer to the Honorary Reserve; or
- (3) Who, having become physically disqualified other than through their own misconduct to perform duties incident to the grades held by them, apply for transfer to the Honorary Reserve.

New ages in grade are established—generally they are lower than before for combat commanders—and forced attrition through selection to insure a "cream of the crop" ORC is insured.

Additionally, it will now be possible for certain officers not holding a T/O&E or T/D&A assignment to be promoted. Of these officers, 1.4 per cent may be colonels; 3.8 lieutenant colonels; 0.9 majors; 25.2 captains and 60.6 lieutenants.

Promotion will be by selection from all ranks above first lieutenant. Officers who are passed over and who reach their maximum age in grade will be moved from the Active Reserve to the Inactive Reserve, where they may remain for an additional five years during which they often will return to the Active Reserve as vacancies develop or as other requirements are met.

In event of war, or other National Emergency, these members of the Inactive Reserve would be available immediately for service.

Also the new program insures that commanders of Reserve units will be of

Enlisted Men Testify
Before Pay Committee

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal's Advisory Commission on Service Pay yesterday heard viewpoints of enlisted personnel for a second day following a mid-week meeting at which personnel representatives from the Armed Services concluded their testimony.

Approximately 20 enlisted men of all ranks, single and married, appeared before the commission during the two days of hearings.

At the same time, it was reported that individual members of the commission will make unannounced visits to various military, naval and air bases to obtain first-hand information from officer and enlisted personnel concerning pay problems.

This follows similar personal studies relating to pay for hazardous duties, important topic for discussion at the concluding meeting with personnel representatives this week.

Target date for submission of the report to Secretary Forrestal was set originally at 1 Sept. Whether in view of the comprehensive hearings, expanded to include enlisted representation, the report will be delayed for a short time could not be ascertained late this week.

It is anticipated that the commission's findings will form the basis for proposed pay legislation for the Armed Services in the 81st Congress.

Ten basic points were asked of enlisted personnel. These were:

1. Reason for entering military service.
- (a) Reason for reentering if reenlisted.
2. Does the service offer a career; do you get job assignments in accordance with capability and selection?
3. How does the military service compare with civilian expectancy in terms of (a) pay, (b) non-cash benefits?
4. Is military pay adequate today? Discuss cash payment, value of "free" food, lodging, clothes, etc.; Marital status.

Army-Air Force Launch
Housing Construction

Construction of family unit dwellings at 14 Army bases in the United States will begin in the immediate future as part of the $63,400,000 Army and Air Force housing program, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall reported yesterday.

Here is where family housing units are to be erected and at these designated costs:

Fitzsimons Gen. Hosp., Denver, Colo., $324,760; Ft. Benning, Ga., $1,179,760; Ft. McPherson, Ga., $327,280; Ft. Sheridan, Ill., $118,640; Ft. Riley, Kans., $592,200; Ft. George G. Meade, Md., $710,440; Percy Jones Gen. Hosp., Mich., $231,000; U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., $2,337,000; Ft. Bragg, N. C., $473,280; Ft. Sill, Okla., $473,472; Ft. Bliss, Tex., $709,920; Camp Hood, Tex., $3,432,672; Ft. Belvoir, Va., $356,056; and Ft. Lewis, Wash., $2,131,632.

Secretary Royall has emphasized repeatedly that lack of housing facilities for families of Army personnel is critical. With funds available, Army engineers now are giving top priority to early construction of these facilities.

The housing construction is part of a $612,700,000 military program of the Corps of Engineers. This fund is broken down into $492,000,000 for Engineer services; $151,000,000 for military construction; and $32,700,000 to cover costs of supplemental construction.

Of the $151,000,000 for construction, $65,579,300 is for Army projects and $85,420,700 for Air Force construction. Of this sum, $63,400,000 or 42 per cent will be utilized for housing; $64,900,000 or 43 per cent for other operational facilities; and $22,700,000 or 15 per cent for emergency construction.

The supplemental appropriation of $32,700,000 will continue work already underway in Alaska, Guam and Okinawa and will be used principally for housing.

Costs for immediate construction projects overseas are: Alaska, $40,907,085; Hawaii, $2,692,585; Marianas, $2,700,000; Philippine Islands, $669,300 at Puerto Rico, $161,000 at Ft. Brooks, $150,000 at Ft. Buchanan and $576,200 at Henry Barracks; and Guam, $600,000.

The $492,000,000 appropriated by Congress for Engineer Services is budgeted under the following general categories:

- Procurement of military supplies and equipment and procurement planning, $27,145,046;
- Repair and maintenance of engineer supplies and equipment, $9,021,767;
- Storage and issue of supplies and equipment, $5,079,766;
- Engineer field operations, $101,422,925;
- Military surveys and maps, $8,986,463;
- Operation of Engineer schools, $907,576;
- Engineer field training, $317,647;
- Development of equipment, $6,080,000;
- Departmental salaries, $3,380,810;
- Transfers, $758,000;
- Contract authorization, $2,000,000;
- Air Force facilities (Maintenance, repairs and utilities), $83,518,520;
- Ground Force facilities (Maintenance, repairs and utilities), $168,362,493;
- Leased facilities, $8,266,304;

Army Segregation—The Draft

Baltimore Sun—"The timing of President Truman's executive orders against racial discrimination in civilian government employment and in the Armed Services strongly suggests that they were politically inspired. . . . The unfortunate part of it all is that it puts on a partisan, vote-getting basis an issue that ought never to be considered in such a way."

Washington Post—"The Army's concern with racial problems cannot be doubted, and many attempts have been made to better relationships. The trouble with these efforts is that they have been made within the framework of the status quo, namely segregation. It is a mistake . . . to think that the Army has followed the so-called national pattern. . . . A policy of gradual dispersion of Negro units and individual reassignments throughout the Army . . . would lessen the possibilities of racial strife, would tend to increase military efficiency, and would certainly be less costly than the maintenance of duplicate facilities."

Washington Star—"It is a mistake to think that the Negro's role in the Armed Services is a menial one. In the Army for instance, there are now 947 commissioned Negro officers. Segregation remains in effect at the company level and it will take time to change this. . . . Whatever the critics may say, this (the President's executive order) represents real progress, and it is gratifying that the President has not been stampeded into action that might do a great deal more harm than good."

Philadelphia Inquirer—"Retirement of Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, the only Negro general in the Regular Army, marks the end of a 50-year career of honorable soldiering and service for his country and stands as well as a landmark of the progress of his race toward the status and recognition which rightfully belong to it. When General Davis was made an officer there were only five commissioned Negroes in the Army. There are more than a thousand now."

Trenton Times-Advertiser—"During the next year the United States will build its first peacetime conscripted Army. It will be an Army brought into being by the threat to world peace implicit in the aggressions of Soviet Russia. . . . The Army's aim will be to develop soldiers with independence and initiative who are fully aware of why they have been compelled to join the Army. There will be nothing totalitarian in its make-up."

Portland Press Herald—"If the Information and Education Division of the Army fails to do a good job of orienting draftees this Fall, the fact of low morale again may become prevalent throughout the Country. It has been like this in the past before the I-E Division was in existence, and it could happen again. . . . The forthcoming draft program will pose an Army morale problem which must be handled with skill and intelligence if our first peacetime draft is to attain any degree of success."

Army Reserve Promotions

such age that no transfers will be necessary to provide a younger man to fill a combat billet.

In an atomic age, it is explained, there may not be time for such transfers as were required at the outset of World War II. Insistence of the new program is on combat efficiency of all officers.

Also provided for is the attrition necessary to provide room within the program for 20,000 to 30,000 ROTC officers and Specialists entering the ORC each year. The program is described as an "automatic system" to insure a flow of officers into the Active Reserve, Inactive Reserve and finally to the Honorary Reserve.

Text of the sections on promotion follows:

6. General. a. This section prescribes general policies and procedures for promotions of officers in the Organized Reserve Corps. In time of war or emergency, when announced by the Secretary of the Army, promotions under this section will be suspended.

b. Temporary promotions of Reserve officers on extended active duty in the Army of the United States will be governed by Section 515, Public Law 381, 1947, as implemented by separate instructions issued by the Department of the Army.

7. Basis of Promotion. The grade authorization within the Organized Reserve Corps is based on the procurement objective for mobilization as announced from time to time by the Department of the Army and will be applicable only to the Active Reserve. Promotions of officers in the Organized Reserve Corps will be made to fill available positions within that authorization. There will be no limit on the number of officers in the Inactive Reserve or Honorary Reserve.

8. Authority to Promote. All promotions will be made by appointment by The Adjutant General in the name of the President.

9. Requirements for Promotion. a. Reserve officers in the Active Reserve only will be promoted to the next higher grade (not above the grade of colonel) provided a vacancy exists in that grade and the requirements of this directive are met. No promotions to colonel in the WAC, ANC, and WMSC Reserves are authorized except that a Director of WAC, a Chief of ANC, and a Chief of WMSC, if qualified, may be appointed in the Reserve Corps in the grade of colonel upon relief from active duty, if not holding an RA appointment and retired as an RA officer.

b. Promotions will be made to fill existing vacancies in T/O&E and T/D units and to fill existing vacancies occurring within the authorized allocations for officers not assigned to such units, as issued from time to time in memoranda or letters to the various commanders exercising appropriate jurisdiction establishing the authorized strength of the ORC, and the allocations of such strengths and modifications of these. The grade structure in the T/O&E and T/D units will depend upon their established organization tables; and for officers not assigned to T/O&E and T/D units, the grade structure by section will be established by application of the following ratio to the respective allocation by section by the assignment authority concerned: Colonels—1.4%; Lieutenant Colonels—3.8%; Majors—9.0%; Captains—25.2%, and Lieutenants—60.6%.

(1) Position vacancies within the various units and that group of officers not assigned to units will be determined by area commanders for the units and personnel for which they are responsible. The vacancies in the units will determine the number of officers within each unit to be recommended for promotion to the Adjutant General. The vacancies for officers not assigned to units will be determined by section in the Active Reserve by application of the above cited grade spread to be allotted authorization by section and these will establish the number of officers within each section to be recommended for promotion to TAG.

(2) In the case of units or officers not assigned to units under direct jurisdiction of the various staff agencies the Directors of General Staff Divisions, Chiefs of those Special Staff Divisions, Chiefs of Administrative and Technical Services, Chief of Army Field Forces, Director of Selective Service, and other similar agencies designated from time to time by D/A will determine for such personnel under their direct jurisdiction position vacancies in the same manner as in (1) above and these vacancies will determine the number of officers in each unit or in each section to be recommended for promotion to TAG.

(3) Authorization of overstrength or attachments in a unit does not create additional position vacancies in the unit unless such additional positions are specifically authorized by the Department of the Army.

(4) A position vacancy will not be required for promotion of Reserve officers from second lieutenant to first lieutenant.

c. Promotions will be accomplished by selective procedures to secure the best qualified among those officers reasonably available to fill these vacancies. These selective procedures will in general follow the methods outlined below:

(1) The area commander or similar authority, as indicated in b(1) and (2) above will appoint or convene a sufficient number of boards of officers to be known as Reserve Selection Boards at such times and in such locations, as deemed appropriate and convenient dependent upon the local situation, for consideration and selection of the best qualified officers for promotion in the Organized Reserve Corps to fill the existing vacancies. The appointment and convening authority for these boards may be delegated down to but not lower than Senior State Instructors to accomplish the purposes of these regulations.

(2) These boards will be composed of an uneven number of officers, not less than three, senior to the individuals to be considered. Officers of any component on extended active duty and reserve officers not on active duty are eligible for membership on these boards. At least one member of the board will be a reserve officer and the active membership may be made up of reserve officers. At least one officer will be of the arm or service of the officers to be considered. Prior consent of the Reserve officers on inactive status to serve on these boards will be obtained, and they will not be ordered to active duty for this purpose.

(3) These boards will take into full consideration the general and professional qualifications of the officers concerned in selecting the best qualified. It is pointed out that the officers being considered for promotion to fill existing vacancies in T/O&E and T/D units must be carefully evaluated, due regard being given to the local situation and their reasonable availability for serving in their proper capacities in the units.

(4) Except as herein prescribed, these boards will be governed by applicable provisions of AR 420-5.

(5) Reports of the boards will be submitted to the area commander or similar authority concerned through military channels for utilization in submission of recommendations for promotion to The Adjutant General.

d. The area commander or similar authority concerned in making the recommendations for promotion to fill the existing position vacancies within his jurisdiction will forward the approved recommendations of the best qualified officers under his jurisdiction as recommended by the boards to The Adjutant General, Attention: AGPR-D, indicating that each officer recommended fulfills the requirements outlined in e below, that a position vacancy exists within his jurisdiction, and that he was selected by a Reserve Selection Board as the best qualified for promotion.

e. Every officer recommended for promotion in the Active Reserve by the commander or authority concerned must fulfill the following requirements:

Col. Fitz Gerald Joins Army and Navy Journal Staff

THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL is pleased to announce that Col. Francis V. Fitz Gerald, who retired from the Army 31 July after more than 30 years' service, has joined its editorial staff.

Colonel Fitz Gerald entered the Army in 1917 after a distinguished and active career as a newspaper reporter and editor. After the war he accepted a commission in the Quartermaster Corps of the Regular Army.

He is a graduate of the Army War College, the Army Industrial College, the Quartermaster Corps School, and of Georgetown University where was awarded the degrees of B.S. and M.S. During World War II he served in General Eisenhower's headquarters.

On the occasion of his retirement, the Baltimore Sun published the following editorial:

Col. Francis V. Fitz Gerald, who since 1930 has been the Army's best-informed and best-informing press officer, retires this week end from active service. To no one in the service have writers gone with greater frequency for explanation of army plans and policies. From none have they received sounder guidance over a long period of time than from this former newspaper man who went into the Army in 1917 for temporary duty in World War I and who leaves it only now for age.

His between-wars duty in the Pacific gave "Colonel Fitz" unusual knowledge which was to prove as useful as his experience in the supplies branches and in general staff intelligence. Consequently in 1930-42 he was giving calmer and sounder advice than many of his superiors, particularly in his estimates of Russian power and of the dark prospect on Bataan and in eastern Asia. The same studious realism in appraisal made him continuously useful both to Army and to correspondents when he headed General Bradley's 12th Army Group press staff in the European campaign. He has been equally effective in the difficult, if undramatic, postwar period in Washington.

Few professionals in any service have possessed such a combination of encyclopedic knowledge, grasp of military needs and civilian viewpoints and uncommon sense.

Single Budget for 1950

The initial statement of requirements forming the basis for the National Military Establishment budget for fiscal year 1950 has been submitted to Secretary of Defense James Forrestal.

By mid-September, it must be worked over and readied for transmittal to the Bureau of the Budget, from which agency the request for Army, Navy and Air Force funds will be moved to Congress early next year.

The 1950 budget plans of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Munitions Board and the Research and Development Board are classified as "top secret." The statistical story must await public release until the President has submitted his budget requests to the 81st Congress.

But the unique story of the 1950 budget preparations—what has occurred since December, 1947, when studies were begun, and what will occur before Congress begins hearings next year—this week could be told.

Step by step, the development of the 1950 budget was recounted to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL by ranking officials of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

Since December, 1947, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Munitions Board and the Research and Development Board, their responsibilities greatly enlarged under the National Security Act, have been preparing plans to form the basis for 1950 budget estimates.

Underlying philosophy behind this spadework has been the assumption that a coordinated plan of operations is, in reality, the basis for a coordinated budget. Of course, reams of facts and figures have been prepared in support and explanation of the comprehensive plan of operations.

At Secretary of Defense Forrestal's order, the Joint Chiefs of Staff prepared and submitted late last month such a plan of operations and/or budget, formulated on the basis of military requirements alone.

Preparing this document is described as analogous to the owner of an automobile, which has traveled 25,000 miles, drafting a complete list of desirable repairs. This does not mean that all the repairs will be made. Likelihood is that in view of high costs and financial limitations some items will be omitted from the work order completely or else at least deferred temporarily.

The automobile will function efficiently, the owner hopes, but he recognizes that perfect performance cannot be expected.

But unlike the typical car owner, the Joint Chiefs of Staff do not prepare their initial budget plans without wise counsel. This is provided for in the National Security Act, which establishes a mechanism whereby the National Security Council continually assesses and appraises the objectives, commitments and risks of the United States in relation to actual and potential military power.

In its preparations of the 1950 budget, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have had frequent advice from the National Security Council. As Secretary Forrestal has said: "Policy making is not our business, but it is our business to see to it that our military potential conforms to the requirements of our national policy." This is helped through close coordination of the National Security Council and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Never before in American history, budget experts said, has coordination been so close between the Armed Services and the State Department.

And in the development of coordination among the departments, "remarkable" progress during the past year is reported by key sources. They grant that there have been difficulties. To some degree, inter-service rivalry has played a part. In other and more frequent instances, there has been evidenced sometimes a lack of full appreciation for the effectiveness of weapons of other arms. But these differences were to be expected. It is emphasized, and notable strides forward have been accomplished in the past year.

With submission of the initial departmental estimates for the 1950 budget of the National Military Establishment, formulated on the basis of military requirements alone, Secretary Forrestal and his boards and agencies must act in the same manner as the automobile owner who realizes he can't have everything he wants.

Between now and mid-September when the NME plan is submitted to the Bureau of the Budget, the task of paring down initial proposals for military funds will go on. At each point, careful weight must be given to increased calculated risks which must be accepted in order to conform with the Nation's ability to pay for military protection.

In this work, Secretary Forrestal and his aides are traversing new ground. Never before has the Nation had a military budget which can equal the 1950 edition insofar as inter-service cooperation is concerned. This is the first budget based on a coordinated policy of all elements of the National Military Establishment.

After arrival at the Bureau of the Budget, the all-inclusive requests for 1950 funds may be revised again before being submitted to Congress.

In its final form, as now planned, the 1950 budget will be divided into four basic parts—the Army, Navy, Air Force and the Office of Secretary of Defense. There will be, of course, one total figure for the National Military Establishment, but this will be broken down according to departments.

Beyond this, it will be up to Congress to determine the future strength of the Armed Services in the light of these detailed preparations.

World's Best Hospital

Described jointly by top Army surgeons and civilian experts as "the world's outstanding hospital," the 1,500-bed Tripler General Hospital at Honolulu will be dedicated officially on 10 Sept.

The hospital was designed to incorporate every modern medical construction improvement and as it neared completion this week was said to be unequalled anywhere else in the world.

Prominent medical officials of the Army, Navy and Air Force and chief officers of the American Medical Association are expected to participate in the dedication of the Army's newest hospital.

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, The Surgeon General, is expected to escort the group of outstanding military and civilian physicians to Honolulu by plane on 7 Sept. to attend the Tripler ceremonies.

Record Health Rate in Europe

The health of the Army in Europe is at an all-time high. Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, The Surgeon General, said this week upon his return from a month's inspection in Germany and Austria.

Conversely, this high health record means that hospitalization of troops is at a record low—less than 2 per cent are away from duties because of illness.

This compares with a sick list average of between 4 and 5 per cent re-ordered in past years and a present average within the zone of interior of less than 3 per cent.

The venereal disease rate in the European command is reported lower than ever before. There have been no epidemics. As a result, Army commanders are able to employ limited personnel with a maximum of efficiency.

General Bliss told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that the remarkable health rate among Army personnel in Europe may be attributed to long range programs of preventive medicine which are now paying off and to the "splendid service" of medical staffs.

This achievement has been made despite the fact that the Army, in Europe as well as in the United States, is operating with only approximately 50 per cent of the doctors it should have.

Proud of the outstanding job of the Medical Department in Europe, in which he has the concurrence of outstanding civilian consultants, different groups of whom visit Army medical facilities in Germany and Austria each month, General Bliss this week addressed a letter of praise to Maj. Gen. Edward A. Noyes, Chief Surgeon in the European Command.

General Bliss told General Noyes that the Army's record reflected the "highest standards of American medicine."

In addition to the skill of medical personnel, General Bliss described the availability of modern German hospitals as an important factor in safeguarding the health of Army and American civilian personnel in the occupied areas.

The Army is now using 15 German hospitals, most of which were built since 1935 and which are described as among the best hospitals in the world.

At Munich, Frankfurt and Nuernberg, the Army is using 750-bed hospitals. Another major installation is a 350-bed hospital at Berlin. General Bliss said there has been no trouble because of a lack of supplies. The air lift is bringing whatever medical equipment and drugs are necessary to the Berlin hospital.

Apparently avoided by Allied bombers during the war, the German hospitals were in excellent condition when taken over for Army use.

Medical Legislation Ready

Tentative emergency legislation which would insure a sufficient number of doctors to meet needs of the draft already has been prepared and will be introduced in the 81st Congress if sufficient volunteer medical personnel do not apply for service.

The Armed Forces are hundreds of doctors short of requirements for the expansion program. It is anticipated, however, that a considerable number of physicians will volunteer for service between now and the end of the calendar year.

However, in the event that this number is not sufficient to insure adequate health security, it is understood that legislation will be submitted to Congress to provide additional doctors for the Army, Navy, and Air Force.

Whereas in the past, the Armed Services and the American Medical Association have sometimes been at odds concerning military, Air and Naval medical requirements, reliable word this week was that top officials of the A.M.A. have been in constant consultation with Army, Navy, and Air Force medical personnel and are in agreement concerning officer requirements and procurement procedures.

Briefly, here is how the situation was summarized this week:

The legislation, agreed to by the Army, Navy, Air Force and A.M.A., is ready for submission to Congress; but all parties are hoping this will not be necessary. They are looking to increased volunteers to respond to attractive service medical programs and to fulfill responsibilities of service to the Nation.

In the event that volunteers are not forthcoming in sufficient numbers, the legislation will be submitted with the combined support of the Armed Services and the A.M.A.

Medical officers emphasize that development of this program has been characterized throughout by the closest possible cooperation among all the Armed Services and the civilian medical profession.

Gray Board to Report

The report of Secretary of Defense Forrestal's Committee on Civilian Components—known as the Gray Board—is scheduled for release next week and details will be carried in the 14 Aug. issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Mr. Gordon Gray, Assistant Secretary of the Army, was chairman of the committee which conducted an exhaustive survey on civilian components of the armed forces.

The committee was appointed in Nov. 1947 to study problems of the Naval Reserve, Marine Corps Reserve National Guard, Organized Reserve and ROTC Units.

Members of the board are Mr. Gray and Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, Army; Assistant Secretary for Air John N. Brown and Vice Adm. William M. Fechteler, Navy; and Assistant Secretary C. V. Whitney and Brig. Gen. J. P. McConnell, Army.

Sears to Succeed Eller

Capt. Harry E. Sears, USN, on the Staff of the Commander, Amphibious Forces, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, has been designated to succeed Capt. Ernest M. Eller as Director of Public Information, Department of the Navy, about 1 August. Captain Eller will enter the National War College, Washington, D. C.

Unification Goal Near, Gurney

Although there is some bickering and jealousy among the Services, the National Military Establishment has made great strides toward the goal of unification under the National Defense Act of 1947, Senator Chan Gurney (R-S.D.), Chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services declared this week.

Addressing his colleagues the afternoon of 5 Aug., Mr. Gurney stoutly defended the National Defense Act and the Services, declaring that critics had no conception of the magnitude of the job of unification or of the great strides the Military Establishment has made toward integrating Army, Navy and Air Forces into a smoothly functioning machine of national defense.

To those who have been critical of the National Defense Act and the Services, the Chairman declared:

"It has been contended that we have no unification; that the services not only are not coordinated, but that there is constant bickering and jealousy among them. I should be the last one to completely gainsay this adverse comment. But at the same time I insist that the National Military Establishment has made great strides toward its goal. And I further insist that as one studies the almost staggering magnitude of the problem, he must recognize that a remarkably competent job is being done. It is only when the observer considers how utterly and completely our old organization lacked cohesion and coordination that he appreciates the progress that has been made. In the popular mind, the passage of any sort of unification law should bring about an immediate and evident result. But I submit that such a concept falls completely to appreciate the vast amount of preliminary organization, planning, cataloging and other administrative preparation which must precede any operation of this magnitude, if it is to be conducted in a sound and orderly manner."

After an exhaustive review of the problems of coordinated procurement, standardization of forms and procedure, research in the fields of medicine and other sciences so necessary to the Military Establishment, studies and accomplishments in the field of industrial mobilization, and the coordination of the civilian components of the Services, Senator Gurney asserted they were no less than "staggering." In the face of the magnitude of these and related problems, the National Military Establishment has moved far toward the goal set by the National Defense Act, he asserted.

Reverting to the critics of the Act and of the Services, Senator Gurney said there had been—in the Services and in the Congress—divisions of opinion, yet always honest ones, but they had been resolved in a spirit of fair play that looked only toward what was in the best interests of the defense of the Nation. He continued that the Services and Congress had done much toward the accomplishment of unification of the Armed Forces.

"The record speaks for itself, and I for one am proud of that record," he concluded.

Greet Career Guidance Program

Army officials this week expressed elation at preliminary reports from the field concerning reception of the career guidance program, which went into effect on 1 Aug.

At the Pentagon, however, there was no surprise at widespread troop approval of the comprehensive program.

Personnel experts explained it this way. After the program had been drafted tentatively, proposals were sent to Army commanders in the United States and overseas. They were instructed to obtain representative reactions from both officers and enlisted men concerning the objectives and detailed operation of the career plan.

At camps, posts and stations, hundreds of officers and experienced non-commissioned officers studied the program carefully. They noted deficiencies, made suggestions and offered considered criticisms of various aspects of the all-inclusive program.

Gen. Ruffner New Chief

Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner this week was named Chief of the Legislative and Liaison Division, Special Staff, United States Army, to succeed Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, selected by Secretary of Defense Forrestal as director for all legislation for the National Military Establishment.

General Ruffner, who was commissioned as a second lieutenant in cavalry, in 1932 has been serving as assistant to General Persons.

Cited for gallantry in action during the invasion of the Gilbert Islands and awarded the Silver Star Medal for this service during World War II, General Ruffner at the end of the war was Chief of Staff, Army Forces in the Pacific Ocean Areas.

He returned to the United States from the Pacific two years ago this week and was ordered to duty with the Secretary of the Army's Personnel Review Board. In September 1947 General Ruffner was assigned as Assistant to the Chief of the Legislative and Liaison Division.

In his new post, General Ruffner will be responsible for detailed execution of all Army legislative matters.

gram in addition to the off-duty educational training afforded in the Army Education Centers. Uniformly high standards of school training have been established and maintained. Quotas are constantly reviewed to insure that the needs of all organizations are being met and that the graduated students are assigned to duties commensurate with the improved capabilities resulting from the completion of school training.

The proper utilization of Negro manpower within the occupation forces is of paramount importance. The policy of the Department of the Army (Circular #124 27 April 1946) seeks to employ Negro manpower in the postwar Army on a broader professional scale than has obtained heretofore. Further, it is established policy to facilitate the development of Negro leaders and specialists. The results of the 1946 experimental training program of the 25th Regimental Combat Team at Ft. Benning, Ga., demonstrated the desirability of combining educational and basic military training for Negro troops as a means towards the development of leadership and specialization. With this background and considering the needs existing within our occupation forces, in May, 1947, we established an independent training center for all Negro troops on duty here. The guiding policy adopted was to develop a combined basic military and educational training program to raise individual educational levels, increase capacity to perform military duties, adjust employment to capabilities, promote morale and effect the maximum possible proper utilization of our Negro manpower.

The principal objective of this special training is to raise the general level of Negro education to develop Negro leadership and specialists. The combined educational and military training program provides two hours daily on-duty academic instruction together with basic military instruction. Specific military training programs include appearance, courtesy, discipline, leadership, initiative, VD control, weapons and the occupation mission and duties. A superior educational program seeks to attain three objectives: first, to raise the individual educational level to improve the capacity to perform soldierly duties; second, to develop Negro instructors, and third, to establish a foundation for and promote a continuing educational program for all Negro units on duty here. The scope of the educational instruction varies from literacy training to and including a full high school course.

Established originally at Grafenwohr, the training center is now located at Kitzingen near Würzburg. Since June, 1946, two Negro Infantry battalions have completed the special training program and at present the center is training over 1,000 troops and has an ultimate capacity of over 1,300. Extensive improvements have been made at Kitzingen and a superior installation now exists affording the most modern facilities for housing, academic instruction, military instruction, recreation, and morale. Special training and educational staffs have been organized and intensive training programs are being conducted. Units undergoing refresher training move to the center in rotation, returning to occupational assignments on completion of training. Individuals from units, as well as all Negro replacements on arrival in the theater, make up the balance of the training forces. Specially selected enlisted men are trained as academic instructors and a minimum of four are assigned to and accompany each unit on departure from Kitzingen in order to continue the educational training of the unit at its new station. It is gratifying to note the accomplishments achieved to date. It may be estimated with confidence that steady progress is being made and the original policies adopted are being confirmed. As the educational level of the Negro soldiers rises, the individual capacity expands to perform military duties with increased efficiency. These results reflect great credit directly upon the Negro soldiers and upon his associates in the occupation forces.

The conduct of extensive field training is a fixed training policy of this command. Grafenwohr, the former site used by the Wehrmacht for field training of the German ground forces, is the principal area now in use by the American Occupation Forces. Located near Nurnberg, the area affords about 90 square miles of training ground similar to the terrain of the Ft. Benning Reservation. However, the climate at Grafenwohr varies from high summer temperatures to extreme winter cold as compared to the generally moderate climate of Georgia. Despite severe bombing damage during the closing weeks of the war, training facilities have been restored and improved, camps, ranges and other structures erected and field training programs for ground forces conducted from battery and company size units progressively to regimental, squadron and division maneuvers. The second annual EUCOM Small Arms Competition is scheduled for Grafenwohr during August, 1948. The 1st Infantry Division and the units of the US Constabulary are being accommodated simultaneously in the field training area this spring and summer. Subject to the stringent occupation requirements for the location of some units in certain key positions, every effort is made to assemble the maximum number of troops for unit and combined field training at the Grafenwohr Training Center. Training programs now in progress afford excellent opportunities to develop leadership, improve the capabilities of all ranks to perform field duties and increase the capacity of the command to meet any military requirements.

The EUCOM School System, the Kitzingen Training Center, and the Grafenwohr Field Training Area are examples of the progressive development of our training activities. Each represents an independent training function contributing to the accomplishment of a balanced training program. Together with post training programs, the training of specialists within service forces, and the training of civilian components, all training activities are designed to promote to the fullest possible extent the maximum efficiency of the entire command to meet any foreseeable task required by the occupation mission.

It is evident that the American forces on duty with this Command bear heavy responsibilities peculiar alone to the occupation mission. The support of the manifold activities of military government, the operation and maintenance of numerous communications and transportation facilities, installations and services, the accommodation of some 40,000 dependents, the geographical dispersal of forces in the Bremerhaven Enclave and at Berlin and Vienna, as well as normal police duties, the development of German Youth programs and the day-to-day relations with the German population are examples of duties requiring special skills and constant specialist training. These responsibilities place unusual obligations upon every individual to maintain at all times the highest standards of conduct and discipline. Since the effects of the 1945 redeployment have disappeared and the gradual organization of new forces materialized, all training programs have been designed to achieve a balance between the special demands of the occupation and the normal requirements for military troop training.

Simultaneously with these local requirements, the occupation forces must be prepared to meet any situation arising from international developments taking place within the surrounding European area. Initially and primarily, the appearance, conduct, soldierly bearing and courtesy shown by all individuals in their relations with Allied, neutral and other foreign nationals contributes to or detracts from the maintenance of goodwill. From time to time tensions arise, the result of political, economical or other developments calling for the exercise of intelligent, calm and considered judgment. At all times, each American on duty here represents our nation and each carries the special obligation to maintain the highest standards of conduct reflecting credit to our flag and our country.

For these reasons, all troop training includes special emphasis on the development, through leadership, of the individual and soldierly qualities essential to the successful performance of duty and the successful achievement of the American occupation mission.

Praise Army Troops

Secretary of the Army Royall has addressed the following message to General

Lucius D. Clay:

"Press reports indicate that American troops, rushed to the disaster in the I. G. Farben Plant at Ludwigshafen, were among the first on the scene and gave invaluable assistance to the French and German authorities in carrying out firefighting and rescue work.

"Please convey to the troops under your command my congratulations for their manner of performance following the Ludwigshafen disaster as it holds to the highest tradition of the Army in its peacetime role of aid to the civil authorities in times of disaster."

Gen. Bradley Aide Leaves

Col. Richard T. McDonnell, aide to General Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, is returning to civilian life.

From Aug. 1908 to Dec. 1919, Colonel McDonnell was an officer of the Regular Army, and during that time saw service in the United States, Hawaii, the Philippines and China. He resigned to enter private business and returned to duty as a Reserve Officer in 1942.

Colonel McDonnell served with General Bradley's Twelfth Army Group Headquarters throughout the European campaign, and when General Bradley became administrator for Veterans Affairs, joined his staff as a special assistant.

When General Bradley left that agency to become Chief of Staff, Colonel McDonnell also moved to the Pentagon.

Capt. Smedberg to USNA

Capt. William P. Smedberg III, USN, has reported to the Naval Academy for duty as Head of the Department of Electrical Engineering, relieving Capt. Wells L. Field.

Guadalcanal Anniversary

Six years ago today, 7 Aug. the 1st Marine Division, Reinforced, landed on the remote tropical island of Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands, to launch America's first offensive action in World War II against Japanese forces in the Pacific.

Under the command of General Alexander A. Vandegrift, then a Major General and later the 18th Commandant of the Marine Corps, approximately 10,000 men of the First Division swarmed ashore on the northern coast of Guadalcanal, while the 1st Marine Raider Battalion landed at Tulagi followed by the 2nd Battalion, 5th Marines. The 1st Parachute Battalion landed on Gavutu at about noon. Two naval task forces and other escorting naval units supported the operation.

For four months these Marines struggled to keep up the campaign which was highlighted by the battles of the Tenaru and Matanikau Rivers, and the battle of "Bloody Ridge." On 9 Dec. 1942 they were relieved by U. S. Army Troops and units of the 2nd Marine Division.

Marines Retire as Brig. Generals

Colonels George H. Potter, James P. S. Devereux, and Charles I. Murray, were retired this week from the U. S. Marine Corps with the rank of Brigadier General.

All three retirements were in accordance with the law which makes such advancement possible for officers who have been specially commended in combat. Both General Potter and General Devereux had been commended in connection with the Wake Island attack at the outbreak of the war, and General Murray had been commended in connection with operations on Guam.

Commands USN Forces in Germany

Rear Adm. John Wilkes will become Commander of U. S. Naval Forces, Germany, with additional duty as Naval Advisor, Office of Military Government.

Admiral Wilkes, who is to relieve Rear Adm. Roscoe E. Schuirmann as Navy Commander in Germany, has been ordered to report to the Commander in Chief, U. S. Naval Forces, Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, for temporary duty. Upon completion of the temporary duty he will take over his new command. Admiral Schuirmann, who has served in his present assignment since June 1946, will report to the Chief of Naval Operations for duty. Admiral Wilkes had been a member of the Joint Strategic Survey Committee, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, since May 1947.

Retired Pay-Navy C of Ch

According to a decision of the Comptroller General, a Chief of Chaplains of the Navy would, on retirement after 30 years' service, have his retired pay computed on the basis of his highest permanent rank. By law, the Chief of Chaplains of the Navy holds the rank of rear admiral, upper half, while serving in that office. The decision is pertinent to the retirement of the present Chief of Chaplains, Rear Adm. William N. Thomas, after 30 years' service, whose permanent rank is rear admiral, lower half.

The official digest of the decision, B-74361, follows:

"A rear admiral (lower half) with service prior to 12 Nov. 1918, who, while serving as Chief of Chaplains with the pay and allowances of a rear admiral (upper half) pursuant to the act of 15 May 1947, as amended, is retired under the act of 13 May 1908, after thirty years' service, is not entitled under the fourth paragraph of section 15 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942 to the retired pay of a rear admiral (upper half), the provisions of the paragraph, authorizing an officer with service prior to 12 Nov. 1918, to receive retired pay based on active duty pay at the time of retirement, being for application only to the pay of an officer's permanent rank."

Per Diem For MATS Personnel

According to a blanket decision (B-77341) of the Comptroller General, naval personnel assigned to duty with the Military Air Transport Service or the Fleet Logistic Support Wings are entitled to "actual expenses or per diem in lieu thereof, while away from their permanent stations, without the issuance of specific travel orders" under section 12 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, as amended.

The official digest of the decision follows:

"Naval personnel assigned to duty with the Military Air Transport Service—created by the Secretary of Defense through a consolidation of the Air Transport Service and the Naval Air Transport Service—or with the Fleet Logistic Support Wings—composed of elements of the Naval Air Transport Service authorized for retention in the Naval Establishment—would be entitled under section 12 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, as amended, as for 'naval personnel on duty with or under training for the Naval Air Transport Service,' to actual expenses or per diem in lieu thereof, while away from their permanent stations, without the issuance of specific travel orders."

New Communications Equipment

Possible revolutionary changes in Army communications equipment were foreseen this week by Maj. Gen. S. B. Akin, Chief Signal Officer, following announcement by Bell Laboratories of the development of a tiny electronics device called a transistor.

General Akin ordered immediate tests of the transistor which, Bell Laboratories say, will do most of the things that a vacuum tube will do and some that vacuum tubes do not do.

The transistor is important to the Army because, having no filament, it requires no heating current to do its job of amplifying voltages. In portable communications equipment, such as the walkie-talkie and the handie-talkie, a large part of the weight and bulk consists of batteries used to heat tube filaments. The transistor could take a great load off the ground soldier's back.

Col. Edwin R. Petzing, head of the Engineering and Technical Division of the Office of the Chief Signal Officer, declared that the transistor holds "promise of having great military value, and the Signal Corps has already made plans to investigate thoroughly its possibilities." The device was demonstrated to representatives of the Armed Services before public announcement of its development.

Reduces Weight

Colonel Petzing added: "One of the most difficult problems in the development of a small portable radio set is that of the dry cell power supply. Present standard handie-talkie and walkie-talkie radio sets have, respectively, 29 per cent and 39 per cent of their weight and 46 per cent and 57 per cent of their volume taken up by the dry batteries. Use of transistors would entirely eliminate the need for the 'A' section of these batteries to heat the cathodes and substitute a low current drain biasing battery with a resultant over-all saving of 25 per cent or more in both battery weight and volume. This is only one example of many applications which will be investigated."

Signal Corps engineers cautioned, however, that there is as yet very little conclusive data on the performance of the transistor. They believe it will be useful where relatively low power is involved. They expect to have to continue to rely on the vacuum tube for high power equipment.

"The immediate need," Colonel Petzing observed, "is for thorough and exhaustive tests to gather complete data on the transistor's characteristics and its reaction to shock, vibration and extremes of climate. These investigations will require a considerable period of time. Therefore, it is not expected that new items of military equipment using transistors instead of vacuum tubes will be offered for service test in the near future."

Record Army Enlistments

Army enlistments for the third week in July totalled 11,434, almost a 100 per cent increase over the same period last year.

In 1947, 9,211 enlistments were recorded during this single week. The 1948 record brought to 29,519 the total of enlistments for the first three weeks of July, of which 21,580 were in the Army and the remainder in the Air Force.

For June of this year, enlistment totals were 32,325, of which 27,062 were in the Army.

It appeared almost certain that when statistics for the entire month of July are available that the enlistment total will surpass that of June by at least several thousand.

Army and Navy Journal 1355 August 7, 1948

Meantime, however, Army officials emphasized that no prediction could be made as yet as to the effect of the accelerated enlistments on possible reduction of draft requirements. Such action could be taken only if the rapid rate of enlistments persists over an extended period of time.

MARTIN for RESULTS

YESTERDAY . . . As early as 1913, Martin was conducting cooperative aircraft experiments with U. S. Military Services. This plane, America's first armored aircraft, was built in that year by a company that has grown along with America's air might.

TODAY . . . The new Martin XP5M-1

Navy flying boat features a long afterbody hull which reduces pitching and bouncing and cuts take-off time and distance. Rescue work in rough seas will be greatly improved by this new Martin craft which has successfully completed its early flight tests. Powered by two 3,500 horsepower engines, it is expected to have a greater range, when completely developed, than presently similar flying boats.

Tomorrow . . . as in the past, great aircraft will come from Martin. And look to Martin for sensational advances in aircraft, rocketry, electronics, rotary wing aircraft, plastics, jet propulsion and many other far-reaching fields. Our Military Services can rely on Martin for results! The Glenn L. Martin Company, Baltimore 3, Maryland.

AF Selection Boards

An Air Force selection board to choose permanent captains for existing vacancies was convened this week under direction of a major general.

Membership of the board consists of five generals and 10 colonels. Under Air Force policy, identity of the selection board members is withheld until the promotion recommendations are made.

Slated for promotion to permanent captain are approximately 1600 permanent first lieutenants, whose date of rank is prior to 1 July, 1944. This group will be reported for promotion.

Additionally, the board will consider for promotion approximately 8000 other permanent first lieutenants whose date of rank is prior to 2 July 1946.

Meantime, the report of the selection board for permanent majors was expected to be released later this month. The initiation of the captain board indicates that the major board has completed its deliberations and that its report is nearing readiness for release.

AF Courses for Officers

A recent Air Force letter authorizes officers in overseas areas to apply for training courses, enrollment to be effective upon return to the United States.

Requested courses may be only where instruction is within authorized MOS. Also, only courses of over 21 weeks duration may be applied for.

Annual Flying Requirements

The Air Force has issued minimum flight requirements for officers, warrant officers and enlisted personnel during a single fiscal year.

In prescribing these requirements, the AF said: "The maintenance of flying proficiency in the technique of pilot or aircraft observer skills or technical skill and familiarity with modern equipment, modern methods, and modern technique by all individuals placed on flying status under the provisions of existing directives are of paramount importance and will be given first consideration among the duties assigned such personnel."

Here are the flight requirements as contained in AF Regulation No. 60-2:

Command pilots, on flying status as pilots: (1) 100 hours of pilot time as first pilot, first pilot instructor, co-pilot, and/or command pilot, of which:

(a) 20 hours will be instrument flight time (weather or hooded), of which 10 hours will be flown each six months.

(b) 15 hours will be night flight time, of which 6 hours will be flown each six months.

(c) 35 hours will be flown each six months.

(2) Not less than 50% of each proficiency requirement outlined above will be as first pilot or co-pilot at the controls of the aircraft. (All hood time must necessarily be as first pilot.)

Senior pilots and pilots on flying status as pilots:

(1) 100 hours of pilot time as first pilot, first pilot instructor, and/or co-pilot of which:

Maintenance of flight proficiency by aircraft observers qualified in one or more of the following SSN's: 0142, 1034, 1035, 1036, and 1037; will be as prescribed in an AF Letter to be published in the near future.

e. Nonrated officers and nonrated warrant officers on flying status:

100 hours of flying time performing required specialized missions, of which at least 35 hours will be accomplished during each six months.

f. In meeting the requirements prescribed above, instrument flight time performed during night flight conditions will be applied to either the instrument flight time requirements or the night flight time requirements, but not to both.

g. Individuals on a limited status will meet the above requirements in conformity with their limitations.

F-87 Named Blackhawk

"Blackhawk" has been chosen as the official name of the Air Force's newest jet fighter, the F-87, designed and now being readied for production by the airplane division of Curtiss-Wright Corporation.

An all-weather fighter, the F-87's will be painted black to make them less distinguishable in night or inclement weather operations.

"Hawk" names have been used to designate Curtiss fighter aircraft since the early days of the aviation industry. This latest name, the Blackhawk, adds the F-87 and its photo-reconnaissance counterpart, the RF-87A, to the long series. The fighter's name has been approved by the Aircraft Committee of the Munitions Board, official arbiters of names for new military models.

Among the earlier Curtiss airplanes of the "Hawk" series were the P-36 Hawks of 1936-40 and the Warhawk, Tommyhawk and Kittyhawk P-40's of early World War II. Curtiss aircraft have always been identified with bird names.

The experimental version of the Blackhawk is now at Muroc Air Base, Calif., undergoing extensive flight tests while engineering and tooling work is progressing at the company's Columbus, O., plant in preparation for quantity production.

The Air Force recently announced that 88 planes of this type are to be included in the forthcoming program for aircraft procurement.

Ft. Harrison To AF

Transfer of Ft. Harrison, Indiana, from the Army to the Air Force on 1 Oct. to provide headquarters for the 10th Air Force has been announced.

Indiana is now in the Air Defense Area controlled by the First Air Force, but will be transferred to the 10th AF before October.

As soon as the 10th AF moves to Harrison, Headquarters of Strategic Air Command will be moved from Andrews AF Base, Camp Springs, Md., to Offutt AF Base, Omaha, Nebr., now used by the 10th.

Headquarters of Military Air Transport Service will be changed from Gravelly Point, Va., near Washington, to Andrews AFB.

Army activities at Ft. Harrison will continue after the transfer is made. These include Headquarters of the Indiana Military District, the Indiana ORC Instructor Group, the Indiana National Guard and personnel stationed at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Stout AFB adjoins Ft. Harrison and will be as the air base for the 10th AF Headquarters.

Gen. Spaatz Honored

Publicly honored at Reading, Pa., close by his native town of Boyertown, General Carl A. Spaatz, retired Chief of Staff of the USAF, this week said the United States must build the biggest air force in the world if it is to maintain the peace of the world.

"An ocean of air has replaced the ocean of water as our first line of defense," General Spaatz asserted. "It is consequently of the highest importance that the United States dominate the air as it formerly dominated the sea."

U. S. COAST GUARD

CONGRATULATORY messages were received by the U. S. Coast Guard this week from the Secretary of the Navy, John L. Sullivan, and Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations. The occasion was the Coast Guard's 158th Anniversary on 4 Aug.

The statements from Secretary Sullivan and Admiral Denfeld recalled the war record of the Coast Guard, units of which fought beside the Navy throughout the world during the war.

In his message the Secretary said: "Throughout a long and distinguished history, Coast Guardsmen have maintained a tradition of service to humanity. Occupied primarily in time of peace with promoting marine safety and rescuing life and property at sea, the United States Coast Guard continues as a force ready to serve at a moment's notice in event of national emergency.

"During the darkest days of 1942, sturdy Coast Guard air-sea craft helped to stem the tide of enemy submarine success. Subsequently, the officers and men of the Coast Guard saw action in every major theater and participated with outstanding heroism and skill in the decisive amphibious operations.

"To the officers and men of the Coast Guard, I send congratulations on this 158th anniversary and extend a salute to the outstanding role the United States Coast Guard has played and will continue to play in the security and welfare of this nation."

Admiral Denfeld's message stated:

"On the battle fronts of World War II, from Amchitka to Africa and from Okinawa to Normandy, Coast Guardsmen landed and fought with a vigor and courage that won the admiration of the world. This outstanding record is matched today by the diversified contributions which this service makes to the economic welfare and security of our nation.

"I send my heartiest congratulations to the officers and men of the United States Coast Guard on the completion of one hundred and fifty-eight years of outstanding service."

During the war, 172,000 officers and men of the Coast Guard manned 1,404 vessels and more than 6,000 smaller craft, including those used for coastal antisubmarine work. Coast Guard personnel patrolled more than 50,000 miles of our beaches, maintained worldwide search, rescue and communications networks, and manned ocean weather stations. Coast Guardsmen manned the helms of landing craft in many amphibious landings, and trained Navy men in the techniques of amphibious work, for which their peacetime activities had given them excellent preparation.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1948

"Any future conflict may well be like a pistol duel—if we don't win in the draw, it will be too late."—LT. GEN. GEORGE E. STRATEMEYER, COMMANDING GENERAL, AIR DEFENSE COMMAND.

THE remarkable success of American and British airmen in supplying 2,000,000 residents of the non-Soviet sectors of Berlin with food, medicine and other essentials during the Russian land blockade was undoubtedly a major factor in the considerations that led Marshal Stalin to receive the envoys of America, France and Britain at the historic conference at Moscow a few days ago. The record of our flyers in moving many thousands of tons of vitally needed supplies during the past few weeks constitutes an achievement unequalled in peacetime aviation history. It is probable that the Russians regarded our initial efforts to move these supplies by air after they had closed the railroads and highways as only a token attempt which would soon be abandoned. Instead the movement has continued, in good weather and bad, with ever-increasing tonnage. It has opened the eyes of the Russians to our ability and determination and they may now be convinced by this demonstration that we cannot be forced out of Berlin by the land blockade or by similar measures. During the month of July American planes on the Berlin shuttle flew 4,827,940 miles. Some 40,411 tons of freight were taken to Berlin in 7,787 flights. Though it is midsummer the weather has not been particularly favorable for this operation. Approximately 68 per cent of the time our planes flew on instruments because of adverse weather conditions. During the first week in August the Americans prepared for a marked increase in tonnage, with the assignment of additional cargo planes of materially greater cargo capacity, and with the preparation of a new airfield and additional landing strips at Tempelhof. While this operation has been extremely expensive it has resulted in indirect benefits, not related to the immediate task of saving millions of Germans from distress and possible starvation. Techniques of loading, stowing and unloading have been developed which will be invaluable in a future conflict. Problems have arisen in maintenance and operation which will be studied and resolved. Air and ground crews have received realistic training in meeting and overcoming obstacles that are likely to be encountered in the logistics of any future wars. True, the problem of supplying 2,000,000 troops in combat is far more complex than that of moving food and fuel to the same number of civilians along an air corridor free from enemy interference. Nevertheless the lessons learned in this operation will be of inestimable importance to American security.

MORE than fifty years ago General of the Armies Pershing, then a lieutenant, served for four years as professor of military science and tactics at the University of Nebraska. It was an experience he never forgot; it made an impression that he retained all of his life. From the time he reported for duty at Lincoln in 1891 until his death last month his interest in training cadets for service as Reserve officers never flagged. In his will General Pershing provided that a sum be given to the University of Nebraska as a perpetual fund, the income of which would be used to procure a gold medal each year to be awarded to the best soldier-student in the cadet corps of that institution. He also bequeathed native weapons and other mementoes of his Moro campaigns to the University of Nebraska and a sword to the Capitol of Nebraska. It is interesting to note that of all of the varied and exciting service of this distinguished soldier throughout the world he chose a routine R.O.T.C. assignment at a midwestern college as the one the memory of which he wished to perpetuate. Obviously this assignment impressed him with the conviction that the continued expansion of military training in our schools and colleges was essential to national security. Many thousands of Reserve officers rendered devoted service to the country in two great wars and many of these were products of cadet corps like that which Lieutenant Pershing taught a half century ago. Army officers who today are serving as instructors in military science at our schools and colleges would do well to reflect on the importance which General Pershing attached to such an assignment.

THE sinking of the venerable old USS Nevada last week and the earlier sinkings of the USS Pennsylvania and the USS New York, each of which served through two wars and the atom bomb tests at Bikini, point up the evolutionary changes taking place in the United States Fleet. The new Navy now being shaped up will be as different from the one which cleared the seas in World War II as the latter was from that with which we entered the war. The all-ocean war saw the Fleet shift emphasis from the heavy battleship to the aircraft carrier and the addition of many hundreds of the new types of landing craft which made possible the large scale amphibious assaults in both oceans. The battleship, however, while giving way to the carrier as the backbone of the Fleet, continues to play most important roles against sea targets as well as against land emplacements, as they did for example at the Battle for Leyte Gulf and at Okinawa. Since the war, the Navy has destroyed four of its older battleships—the three mentioned above plus the USS Arkansas which went down in Test Baker at Bikini. Of the fourteen remaining battleships, only one, the USS Missouri, has been retained in active service, the others having been placed in the reserve. In the meantime, the Navy's program of ship construction and conversion gives a vivid indication of the characteristics of the new Navy and the type of war for which it is being prepared. The new construction program includes the large 65,000-ton aircraft carrier, one "killer" ship especially designed for anti-submarine duty, two high speed submarines, and one special anti-submarine submarine. The conversion program includes nine destroyer escorts, two submarine troop carriers, one submarine cargo carrier, one submarine for arctic picket duty, one landing ship dock, one cargo ship for Arctic service, and one aircraft carrier of the Essex class. Also desired, but for which funds have not yet been approved, are two fast landing ships and an attack transport, plus more submarines and "killer" ships. Submarine, anti-submarine, and sea-going aviation are thus the points of emphasis, in addition to intensification and perfection of the moving and landing of ground troops. In all these activities the Navy is keeping constantly in mind the utilization of and defense against atomic warfare, guided missiles, and yet-to-come developments of modern scientific research.

Philosophy

A fool and his money are soon parted—they were lucky to get together in the first place.

—Scott AFB Broadcaster.

Honor Among Thieves

A bunch of tough hombres were playing poker in the wilds of West Texas. The game was furious, the stakes were high. Suddenly the dealer flung his cards on the table and threateningly pulled out his gun. "Boys," he roared, "the game ain't a straight one! Slippery Sam ain't playin' the hand I dealt him!"

—Camp Lee Traveller.

How Time Flies

Col. E. O. Thompson, a Texas railroad man and a veteran of both World Wars, tells about an elderly friend who called and asked that Thompson "talk" to his son.

"You were his commanding officer," the friend said, "and maybe you can get him to settle down and go to work."

Colonel Thompson said he'd be glad to see the boy, but suggested that he just needed a little more time for adjustment to civilian life.

"More time?" the father said, "He served in the first World War."

—Foreign Service.

"What is it about a dachshund you don't care for?" asked the shopkeeper.

"They make such a draft when they come into a room," complained the sergeant. "They always keep the door open so long."

She Couldn't Help It!

On a trip from North Ireland to Erie, an elderly Irish woman was stopped at the boundary line by the customs officer, who asked if she had anything to declare.

"Only a bottle of water," she replied.

"What kind?" asked the official.

"Holy water."

Long experience had-taught the officer to take nothing for granted, so he asked to see the bottle. The lady protested, but he snatched it from her and took a whiff of the cork.

"It's whiskey," he cried.

"Glory be," exclaimed the old woman fervently, "—a miracle!"

As You Wish

When Will Smith applied for a driver's license in Detroit's crowded License Bureau, an officer hastily thrust a paper across the desk. "Write your last name first and your first name last," he said hurriedly.

"How's that again, sir?" asked Smith, somewhat confused.

"Like I said," replied the cop. "Backwards."

Smith shrugged his shoulders. After all they knew what they wanted. Laboriously he wrote: "llW htms."

—Port Log.

What!

A Smoother Gin?
YES!

An American Original
means something better!

This American Original—the first and only gin of its kind ever made in America—has swung millions to its smoother taste. Its pale golden color is a natural color—nothing added but patience in the making. Sip it to see how the Seagram's exclusive process makes it smoother. Mix it to prove how naturally better it makes your Collins.

Just ask
who's tasted it!

Distilled from American Grain. 90 Proof.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—Restrained optimism results from the dramatic meeting of the ambassadors of the United States and France and the special representative of Great Britain with Marshal Stalin on 2 Aug. Until this week there seemed to be a complete stalemate in the attempts to settle the Berlin situation. Not only was there no sign of any relaxation of the Russian blockade, but there was apparently no desire on the part of Soviet officials to enter into any discussion, so long as the Americans, British and French made the free resumption of rail and highway travel to Berlin a condition precedent to any full-scale negotiations. With lesser Soviet functionaries adamant the western Allies made a final effort to present the matter directly to Foreign Minister Molotov, only to learn that he was on vacation and the time of his return was indefinite. A complete impasse appeared to have been reached.

Then developments came with startling rapidity. Molotov returned from his vacation and a conference was arranged between Marshal Stalin and the representatives of the western powers. The United States was represented by Ambassador Walter B. Smith, France by Ambassador Yves Chataigneau, and Great Britain by Frank Roberts, special representative of the foreign office. The conference lasted two hours and there are indications that progress was made. Apparently the way is now open for further preliminary meetings which may point the way to a conference of foreign ministers.

The significance of the meeting with Marshal Stalin is apparent from the fact that Ambassador Smith had not conferred with the Red dictator in two years and in fact had met him in such conferences only twice since his appointment as ambassador. It would probably be rash to expect a speedy resolution of all points of difference between the Kremlin and the western powers. The Russians are difficult to deal with and they will undoubtedly insist on a high price before they will consent to lift the Berlin blockade. In all probability the success of the air supply of Berlin by the Americans and British was a factor in persuading Marshal Stalin to enter into a discussion of the subject.

Assuming that a full-scale foreign ministers' conference is held it is probable that negotiations will not be confined to the Berlin situation, but will be broadened to include not only all major problems affecting Germany but also all other important European matters now in dispute. The Russians are unhappy about the move to consolidate the German governments of the non-Soviet zones. They do not like the currency reforms initiated by the western powers and they strongly oppose the Marshall plan. They want more reparations from Germany and a voice in the disposition of the industrial production of the Ruhr. It is difficult to see how the opposing points of view may be reconciled. The danger of a collapse of negotiations is always very real. Nevertheless there seems to be some ground for hope.

In the meantime discussions on the control of the Danube have opened at the 11-nation conference at Belgrade. With complete disregard for diplomatic niceties Mr. Vishinsky, the Soviet deputy foreign minister, told the western powers that Russia and her satellite neighbors proposed to take exclusive control of navigation on the Danube, and that those who didn't like it could leave the conference. Despite existing commitments he proposed that the western powers be eliminated from consideration in planning future control of the waterway. A realistic approach to this situation would indicate that the conference is heavily weighted in favor of Russia and that western protests will be unavailing. The Yugoslavs are in the Russian camp on this issue, irrespective of recent well-advertised differences.

The Russians have tightened their grip on Hungary, Zoltan Tildy, generally regarded as a pliant tool of Moscow, though not a Communist, resigned the presidency of Hungary, after his son-in-law, Dr. Victor Csornoky, was charged with treason and espionage. Apparently Tildy was regarded by the Reds as an interim official to be gotten rid of in accordance with standard operating procedure whenever it was convenient to install a more dependable comrade. Arpad Szakasits was nominated by the Unified Labor party, controlled by Communists, to succeed Tildy. Members of opposition groups made a feeble gesture of dissent, after which the Red candidate was elected as the unanimous choice of the Hungarian parliament.

In Roumania foreign and sectarian schools have been abolished and the Russian language has been introduced into the curriculum of the state-supported schools. Evidently this unhappy country is to be even more closely integrated with the Soviet Union than some of the other Iron Curtain countries.

After a slow start the campaign of the nationalist forces against the Communist guerrillas in Greece seems to be making satisfactory progress. The territory held by the Communists in the mountain fastnesses has been reduced by two-thirds. The Greek army has announced the capture of Kerassoron, southern anchor of the Communist forces in northern Greece. On the Albanian border other Greek forces have taken Kamenic Heights, a lofty terrain feature which dominates a valley through which a guerilla line of communications extends. There are some indications which point to the imminent collapse of Communist resistance in the Grammos mountains. General Van Fleet and the members of the American military mission have been in close touch with the national government throughout the campaign. They are reported to have recommended the recent shake-up of the high command of the Greek army which has resulted in a material improvement of the military situation.

The uneasy truce in Palestine continues, but it is freely predicted that it will be short-lived. Count Folke Bernadotte, the resourceful representative of the United Nations, is exerting almost superhuman efforts to keep the peace and has already accomplished much more than could reasonably have been expected. However, both Jews and Arabs are restless and sporadic violations of the truce are likely. The conflict has disclosed Arab weaknesses. Representing several different Moslem countries their common opposition to the Jews seems not to have provided sufficient incentive for that cohesion so essential to victory. On the other hand most of the Israeli troops are well disciplined and their training by veterans who saw combat service in the British army during the war appears to be well advanced. The Jews are complaining that the British are needlessly delaying the arrival in Palestine of immigrants now at Cyprus.

A dangerous situation in Italy has been eased by the progress toward recovery of Togliatti, the Communist leader, who was murderously attacked by an irresponsible assassin last month. Togliatti has left the hospital and is convalescing at his home. He has indicated that he will withdraw from political activity at least for the present. There have been some indications that Togliatti has lost favor with Moscow and it may be that the Italian Communist will make his wound an excuse for going into semi-permanent retirement. The incident which was feared to have threatened the security of the de Gasperi government seems actually to have strengthened it. The abortive general strike started by the Communists when Togliatti was attacked was quickly suppressed by the firm action of the government. Now the withdrawal of Togliatti from political activity further weakens the Communist opposition while it is still smarting from its recent defeat at the polls.

In Japan the Communists are trying to stir up trouble for our occupation troops and for the government by urging revolution against the so-called ruling classes. They are taking advantage of General MacArthur's recent declaration against strikes by government employees to attempt to enlist the support of dissident civil servants for their subversive movements. The declaration of General MacArthur was a reiteration of the fundamental American policy established by long usage and accepted by responsible labor organizations that strikes of government employees cannot be tolerated. The opposition of General MacArthur's American labor advisers to the establishment of this policy in Japan is rather astounding.

The Communists in Malaya announced that they would take over the government this week. Instead the remnants of the Communists have fled to the jungle. The uprising has not been completely suppressed, but the marked success thus far achieved by the British leaves the rebels with small hope of ultimate success.

Gen. Clay To Remain—Spiking unfounded reports concerning the possible replacement of General Lucius D. Clay as commanding general of Army forces in Europe, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall this week issued the following succinct statement: "The Department is not and has not considered replacing General Clay. He is handling a very difficult assignment in an outstanding manner."

Military Missions—The Army is seeking to build up its special file of qualified personnel for assignment to military missions and therefore has called for applications for such service from both officers and enlisted personnel. Details of qualifications are contained in Circular No. 217. Each officer's application must be endorsed by an officer of the grade of colonel or higher.

Army General Gift Fund—The Director of Logistics, General Staff, U. S. Army, has been designated as the monitor for all gifts and bequests made to the Department of the Army. The Chief of Finance will receive, disburse and account for all funds derived from approved gifts, acting as the agent for the Secretary of the Army.

Navy Balks Russian Spy—Testifying this week before a Senate Committee investigating wartime espionage activities of foreign agents, Elizabeth Bentley, 36, self-styled Russian spy, declared that she obtained no vital information direct from the Navy Department or any of its employees, although, she said, the ring she was operating for did get "a bit of Navy information that trickled through the Office of Strategic Services and through the Treasury Department. But," she continued, "practically speaking, it was not very much." She said the Navy, next to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, had the best system to keep the spy ring from getting information.

At another point in the hearings, Rear Adm. Thomas B. Inglis, Chief of the Office of Naval Intelligence, refused to surrender to the Committee a secret file on William Remington, presently an employee of the Department of Commerce, who last year had been asked to resign his commission as Ensign in the Naval Reserve. Admiral Inglis stated he was acting on instructions of Secretary of the Navy Sullivan, who later refused to answer the Committee when it asked if the refusal indicated the Navy had suspected Remington's loyalty. Mr. Sullivan said he believed testimony on the subject (Remington's loyalty) would violate the President's executive order on the loyalty program.

Truman and Dewey on Air Power—President Harry S. Truman and Governor Thomas E. Dewey joined last Saturday in describing strong air power as an effective weapon for peace. They spoke at the dedication of the New York International Airport at Idlewild, Queens.

"The demonstration of air power held here today, consisting of planes of the Air Force and the United States Navy," President Truman said, "is convincing evidence of our determination to remain strong in the cause of peace."

The President continued: "A good many people in the world today seem to have lost their hope for peace and their courage to work for it. They seem to have forgotten that courage and the determination to stand up for what is right are essential if peace and liberty are to prevail. When they look around them, they see only trouble and danger. It is our job—the job of the American people—to help restore confidence all over the world that peace is not only possible but inevitable if the peoples of the world work together. It is our job to restore the courage of those who are so worried about today that they have lost the heart to work for tomorrow."

Governor Dewey called the new airport "more than just a place to land air-planes. It is a symbol of peace and at the same time a powerful implement for peace."

He added: "All of us in this shrinking world must learn and the sooner the better, to understand our superficial differences and to know our fundamental similarities as human beings. We must learn courtesy and mutual understanding while repelling and rebuking intolerance on the part of any."

"Operations Hospitality"—At The Wiesbaden AF Base, Germany, focal point for "Operations Vittles" to Berlin, personnel have inaugurated a program to provide weekend housing facilities for families of men assigned there for temporary duty to assist in the air lift. This is called "Operations Hospitality." Airmen at Wiesbaden are listing available rooms at their homes and thus are permitting the visits of wives and children of flyers and ground crewmen who would otherwise be separated from their families. Accorded much credit for initiation of the housing operation is the Enlisted Men's Wives Club.

Defense Organization Under Republicans—The possibility of a Republican victory in the November national election has led to considerable speculation as to resultant changes in key personnel of the National Military Establishment. It is not probable that any change will be made in the positions of Chief of Staff of the Army, Chief of Naval Operations, or Chief of Staff of the Air Force. However, in the event of Governor Dewey's election it is likely that Fleet Admiral William H. Leahy would ask to be relieved as Chief of Staff to the President to revert to the retired list of the Navy.

In this connection Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, USA-Ret., is regarded as a strong probability to succeed Admiral Leahy. General Drum retired from the Army in 1943 after a distinguished military career which began during the War with Spain in 1898. He served at various times as The Inspector General, as Deputy Chief of Staff, and during World War II, as Commanding General of the Eastern Defense Command. Subsequent to his retirement he was in command of the New York Guard and more recently succeeded the late Alfred E. Smith as head of the corporation which owns and operates the Empire State Building. He is a close personal friend and adviser of Governor Dewey.

United States Senator Edward Martin has been mentioned as a possible successor to Defense Secretary Forrestal should Mr. Dewey be elected President. Senator Martin is the former commanding general of the 28th Division of the Pennsylvania National Guard and more recently was governor of Pennsylvania. He has taken a lifelong interest in problems of National Defense and is looked upon by many as ideally qualified for Secretary of Defense.

Another one mentioned for Secretary of Defense is Harold E. Stassen who served as a captain in the Navy during the war and who was a leading contender for the Republican presidential nomination. While in the Navy he was flag secretary to Fleet Admiral Halsey. Mr. Stassen's recent acceptance of the presidency of the University of Pennsylvania may make it unlikely that he would accept a cabinet post.

Army Chaplain Needs—The recall to active duty of 400 wartime chaplains is projected to meet religious needs of personnel in the Army's expansion program. Indication this week was that most of the chaplains summoned back to Army service will be first lieutenants and captains.

Army officials say that the return of 400 chaplains to active service will approximate the need for Chaplain Corps expansion until 30 June 1949. As of 31 July, 1,004 chaplains were on duty with the Army.

Meantime, an extensive program is being developed with cooperation of church groups throughout the country for expanding the Chaplain Reserve Corps.

Of the 400 additional chaplains who will be needed for service, estimates are that approximately 250 will be Protestant, 100 Roman Catholic, and 50 Jewish.

Insofar as promotions within the Chaplain Corps are concerned, it was learned this week that approximately 13 vacancies for the grade of colonel now exist. Previously, the Chaplain Corps held no selections for the rank of colonel because of an over strength in this grade. No prediction was available as to when a new selection board might be called to consider promotions to colonel, but with the vacancies available and with an over-strength of lieutenant colonels now available, it is possible that such a board may be convened within the near future.

National Guard—Federal recognition of 60 National Guard Army units and nine Air Guard units has brought to 4,628 the number of NG activities which have gained such status. This means that 75 per cent of the 6,205 total units allotted the States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii and Puerto Rico now are Federally recognized.

Strength of the National Guard in mid-July rose to 318,827 officers and enlisted men, approximately 25,000 short of the NG's 1949 fiscal year budgetary size.

There were 287,316 officers and men in 4,225 Army units and 29,511 officers and men in 402 Air units.

Air Force Music—The Air Force is determined to hit a high note in musical proficiency. A recent directive orders commanding generals of major air commands to appoint a band supervisor to coordinate activities of AF bands. The AF said it wishes to "provide a basis for bringing bands to the highest possible musical and military standards." AF Regulation 34-7 gives details on the organization of AF bands.

Chief of Staff to Speak—General Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff, will make his first address before a Veterans' group since assuming the top Army post late this month when he travels to St. Louis, Mo., to speak at the annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. General Bradley is slated to appear at a morning session on Monday, 30 Aug.

Army Special Services—Col. Fay Ross, Third Army Hq., will arrive in Washington, 9 Aug., to spend 15 days temporary duty at Army Special Services Hq., and at Army Exchange Service Hq., New York, N. Y., before departing for assignment at Sixth Army Hq., The Presidio of San Francisco.

Lt. Col. Elmer P. Hardenbergh, Washington Representative for Army Exchange Service, has returned to duty after completing a 13-weeks Advanced Management course at Harvard University.

Lt. Col. William A. Bishop is on 60 days active duty training at the Special Services School, Ft. Monmouth, N. J. Colonel Bishop is Director of Athletics at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa.

Maj. John C. Elliott has been assigned to the Office of the Chief of Special Services as Chief of Military Personnel under the Personnel & Training Division. Major Elliott was formerly stationed at Seoul, Korea, with the XXIV Corps in charge of the Seoul Main Post Exchange.

Transportation Corps—During the recent railroad emergency the Chief of Transportation was represented in each of the seven railroad operating regions by prominent railway men. They were commissioned as officers and called to active duty to serve as regional directors. Maj. Gen. Heileman has received various letters from these officers who are now back in civil life, expressing their satisfaction for having been able to render service during the emergency. Typical of the letters received is the one from Col. J. D. Farrington, President of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Co., which in part reads: "It was, I assure you, a pleasure to me to accept (the rather limited as it turns out) responsibilities as representative of the Chief of Transportation for the Southwestern Region, and I feel it an honor to have been associated with and under the command of such outstanding officers of the United States Army as General Levey and yourself."

Naval Dental Corps—Training duty will be available to a limited number of reserve dental officers at the U. S. Naval Dental School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., during the period 25 Oct.-5 Nov. 1948, inclusive. The total number that can be accommodated has been apportioned among the naval districts. Requests for assignment to this training duty should be submitted to the Commandants of the naval districts in which the officers maintain their official residences. Final approval of requests and issuance of orders will depend upon the availability of funds.

Corps of Engineers—Col. F. F. Frech, District Engineer for the Philadelphia District, has been designated as Acting Division Engineer of the North Atlantic Division by the Chief of Engineers. Colonel Frech will replace Col. R. C. Dunn who has been relieved from active duty. This assignment will be in addition to his present duties as District Engineer. As Division Engineer, Colonel Frech will direct the construction of Veterans Hospitals, flood control projects, dredging in rivers and harbors, and military construction in the New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., and Norfolk Districts.

Joint Medical Staffs—The Surgeons General of the Army and Navy and the Air Surgeon are scheduled to survey service medical facilities in Hawaii and Guam next month, with prospects reported this week for consolidation of medical activities in those areas.

Much study reportedly already has been accomplished with an eye towards joint use of medical staffs in these two areas. As these survey results now obtain, it seems likely that the Army would have prime responsibility for Armed Services medical care in Hawaii, with the Navy playing a similar role at Guam.

Such consolidation, already in effect at the Panama Canal and in Puerto Rico, will conserve personnel and insure improved medical care for all the Armed Services.

It is anticipated that while the Army and Navy, respectively, will have charge of the medical program in Hawaii and Guam, operation of these facilities will be characterized by joint medical staffs, including physicians from the Army, Navy and Air Force at various installations.

Meantime, a top Army medical officer has reported that the Secretary of Defense's committee on medical services—known as the Hawley Board—is giving consideration to the establishment of area medical officers. These officers would be responsible for all medical means within a given area and irrespective of service jurisdiction.

Bureau of Medicine & Surgery—Ten medical officers have been recently certified by the American Specialty Boards. The certification brings the total number of certified specialists in the Navy to 155, and on 1 July of this year there were 75 officers under instruction in special courses, and about 50 recipients of fellowships in the largest civilian medical schools, clinics and hospitals in every section of the country. The recent certification of these doctors is the result of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery's Graduate Medical Training Program for the purpose of increasing the proficiency of medical officers and of keeping them abreast of the most modern advances in medicine.

Medical Service Corps—The following Naval Reserve officer has recently been appointed in the Medical Service Corps of the Regular Navy: Comdr. Verne W. Lyon (Aviation Psychologist) to Staff, Commander, Naval Air Training, NAS, Pensacola, Fla.

Army Institute of Pathology—The fourth edition of the Atlas of Dermal Pathology, prepared from material at the Army Institute of Pathology by the Registry Committee on Dermal Pathology of the American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology, has been published by the Registry Press and is now ready for distribution. The Atlas is designed to serve as an index and guide to a set of approximately 100 slides on dermal pathology. The material has been confined chiefly to characteristic sections of dermatoses which for the most part have definite or diagnostic histologic changes. Illustrations were selected from the files of the Army Medical Illustration Service, by Dr. Arthur C. Allen, consultant to the Army Institute of Pathology.

Army Finance Department—Lt. Col. George R. Gretzer, former Executive Officer in the Office of the Chief, Finance Division, European Command, Frankfurt, Germany, arrived in Washington last week to attend the next class at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces at Ft. Lesley J. McNair.

Maj. Alexander J. Almand visited the Office of the Chief of Finance from the Wharton School of Commerce and Finance, University of Pennsylvania, Phila., Pa., where he is pursuing a post graduate course in Business Administration.

Capt. Alfred E. Barbour, Army Audit Agency, who has been on temporary duty at the Army Finance School for the past few months, was in Washington last week in connection with the conduct of the recently established Accounting and Auditing Course. He will return to the Army Finance School for further duty in the presentation of the course.

Army Research—Establishment of a General Research Office in cooperation with Johns Hopkins University is announced by Maj. Gen. A. C. McAniff, Deputy Director for Research and Development, Army General Staff. Scientists will work on problems concerning weapons development, strategy, tactics and logistics.

Dr. Ellis A. Johnson, former Naval officer and later a civilian Research Analyst for the U. S. Air Force, will head the new office. Lt. Col. W. C. Farmer, GSC, is "project officer." Headquarters for the research work will be at Ft. Lesley J. McNair, Wash.

Army Field Forces—General Jacob L. Devers, Chief, Army Field Forces, was at Camp Ripley, Minn., 4-6 Aug., to make a routine inspection of the 47th Division (National Guard). He was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Robert M. Bathurst, Deputy Assistant Chief; Lt. Col. Hallett D. Edson, Training Section; and Lt. Col. John F. P. Hill, Aide to the Chief.

Maj. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey, Assistant Chief for Developments, attended a conference at the Detroit Tank Arsenal, Centerline, Mich., 2-3 Aug., on the development of automotive equipment for the Army. General Hickey was accompanied by Maj. T. H. Stewart, III, Combat and General Purpose Vehicles Division, Developments Section.

Brig. Gen. John H. Church, Deputy Assistant Chief for Training, left Ft. Monroe, 2 Aug., to observe civilian component training activities at Camp Edwards, Mass.; Ft. Devens, Mass.; and Pine Camp, N. Y. He returned 6 Aug.

Col. C. F. Fowler, Budget and Fiscal Officer, was in Washington, 30 July, in connection with the Budget Advisory Committee hearings on appropriations.

Col. John A. Smith, Jr., Logistics Section, attended a budget conference in the office of the Comptroller General, Washington, 30 July. From 1 to 3 Aug., Colonel Smith was at Ft. Benning, Ga., to attend a conference on logistic training and support of the 31st Division.

Air Force Education—Scholarship of airmen is on the increase. Statistics for June show that 8.9 per cent of Air Force personnel are enrolled in either USAFI correspondence or self-teaching courses. This marks a 34 per cent increase in USAFI enrollment since the beginning of this calendar year.

Air Force ROTC—Advanced enrollment in Air Force ROTC classes has reached 6,179, with maximum budget provisions for 9,353 officer candidates until 30 June 1949. Total Air ROTC registration is approximately 210,000, of whom less than 400 are informal enrollees.

Included among these informal enrollees—they receive no pay or uniforms—were a small number of persons who do not hold U. S. citizenship. As a result of a new AF directive, these non-citizens will be barred from future Air ROTC training—formal or informal. This conforms with policy prescribed by Congress.

Veterinary Corps—Col. Daniel S. Stevenson was recently elected to the Order of Vasco Nunez de Balboa of Panama. The national decoration, in the grade of Commendador, was conferred upon Colonel Stevenson by Guillermo Mendez, the Panamanian Minister of Agriculture, Commerce and Industries, and acting chancellor of the Order, in a ceremony held in the Office of Foreign Relations. Colonel Stevenson is veterinary advisor to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Panama.

No. 1, on the eve of his retirement from the Army after 28 years' service. Sergeant Hubbert joined the Infantry in 1920 and served for almost 20 years before transferring to the Signal Corps.

Cound, USA-Ret., who has been Chief of Stock Control Branch and Chief of Foreign Aid Branch, Supply Division, OQMG, has been relieved from active duty at his own request. Army Cost Accounting—Establishment of an Army-wide cost accounting program, directed by the Army Comptroller, was reported this week. The program will co-ordinate and standardize existing cost accounting operations and provide for complete coverage of all Army activities. The official announcement said that "the primary responsibility for reporting and use of costs rests with those who have responsibility for the management of operations, and this individual responsibility is not in any way abrogated by the establishment of an over-all cost of accounting program."

Judge Advocate General's Department—Brig. Gen. Hubert D. Hoover, USA-Ret., who retired 30 June, has been recalled to active duty for a period of six months and is now acting The Judge Advocate General during the temporary absence on leave of Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green.

Brig. Gen. E. M. Brannon, Assistant Judge Advocate General for Procurement Matters, has departed for a short period of duty in Europe as a member of the party headed by Mr. Tracy Voorhees, Assistant Secretary of the Army, which is consulting with officials of the Military Government and the Economic Cooperation Administration.

ATTENTION RETIRED OFFICERS BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

For $30,000 you can purchase a one-half interest in a commercial radio broadcasting station in Guatemala City (with 51% voting control). Present owner of this interest is paid a salary of $400 per month, and for the fiscal year February 1947-1948, received 8% on $30,000. You need have no previous radio experience as able technicians are on the station payroll.

Future Prospects—The outlook for fiscal year 1948-1949, based on present signed contracts and elimination of all outstanding indebtedness, should show net earnings of approximately 20%.

Fiscal year 1949-1950 should be much greater, as Guatemala is to be the site of Central American and the Caribbean Area olympic games in 1950. It is also the presidential election year and there will be plenty of paid political programs.

Guatemala City is known as the "Land of Eternal Spring." It is a beautiful city of 150,000 with nearby mountains, lakes and deep sea fishing. Cool nights, mild days. You can live better on less money than in the United States.

Thorough investigation invited. For further details and information, please write to

FINANCE

Financial Digest

Trading in securities has been at low ebb for a week, with daily sales on the New York Stock Exchange running a scant 700,000 shares with prices about at levels of the previous week, although a few rail and industrial stocks moved upward for fractional gains.

Factors which can be held responsible for the dull market activities are the diplomatic impasse between the Western Powers and the Kremlin, and the extra session of Congress; the latter scheduled to make some revision of bank credits, and to put some brake on installment buying during the coming week.

Although most observers believe the Congress will not go to any great lengths in its efforts to check allegedly inflationary credit, nevertheless until that body does act it is doubtful that securities markets will move either upward or downward until traders can know exactly what checks are to be imposed; and whatever they are, there is no sound reason to believe they will have an adverse effect on securities generally, although checks on installment buying could hurt certain lines, notably jewelry, furniture and household appliances.

Continuing mid-year reports of corporation earnings for the first half of the year show profits to be ahead of the same period in 1947, but two large utilities have reported slight declines in net earnings.

Offerings of new securities during the week fell to a level of only $25 million, the most of these being long-term bond offerings of states and municipalities. However, all new offerings moved at prices that will bear low interest rates—from one to one-and-one-half per cent.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

John M. Franklin, President, United States Lines, has announced the conclusion of negotiations with the Maritime Commission for the repurchase of the SS America, largest and fastest liner ever built in the United States. The purchase was arranged after several months of negotiations, Mr. Franklin said, noting that the current development program of U. S. Lines includes the construction of a $65 million superliner.

The first of American Export Lines new "4 Ace" passenger liners will sail on her maiden voyage 21 Sept. Named Excalibur, she will be followed 5 Oct. by the Exochorda, on 19 Oct. by the Exeter, and by the Excambion 2 Nov. These vessels will rotate future sailings in the same order, leaving Pier D, Jersey City every other Tuesday. A round trip of each liner will take 45 days during which 12,000 miles will be covered. The vessels will accommodate 125 first-class passengers and are air conditioned.

The United States Travel Division of the Department of the Interior has outlined comprehensive plans to attract visitors to the United States from the Western Hemisphere, and will recommend the use of American ships and other facilities of transportation.

The new Robin Mowbray departed on her maiden voyage for the Seas Shipping Co., 28 July, completing the building program of the Robin Line. She is under the command of Capt. Charles H. Whitmore.

Fifty tankers, 45 of 20,000 tons or over, are on order or under construction in United States Yards, according to the American Bureau of Shipping. America controls approximately one-third of the world's tanker fleet capacity of 23,700,000 DWT.

Obituaries

N. Y., 19 June 1885, the son of General Arthur Murray. He was graduated from the Military Academy as a second lieutenant of Coast Artillery in 1907. After duty with the Army Mine Planter Service, on the east coast and in the Philippines for three years, he returned to the United States in 1911 and served in various domestic assignments until World War I, when he went to France with the 5th Field Artillery Regiment, participating in the Cantigny and Soissons operations of the Aisne-Marne offensive.

After the War he commanded Firing Centers at Ft. Sill, Okla., Ft. Bragg, N. C., and West Point, studied at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and spent a four-year tour of duty in the Office of the Chief of Field Artillery from 1920 to 1924. He then attended one-year courses at the Field Artillery School at Ft. Sill and the Command and General Staff School at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

General Murray served again in the Philippines from 1929 to 1932 as Assistant to the Governor General. He returned to the United States for duty in various Field Artillery posts until June 1940, when he took command of the 11th Field Artillery Brigade in Hawaii. In April 1941 he became Commandant of the Hawaiian Division.

In April 1942, General Murray assumed command of the 35th Infantry Division at Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif., and became Commanding General of the Southern California Sector at Pasadena in January 1943. The following June he was given an unannounced assignment in the South Pacific. In December he became Commander of the Guadalcanal Island Forward Area and the V Island Command. In June 1944 he took command of the II Island Command in Fiji, the following month the South Pacific Area in New Caledonia. He later resumed successive commands on Guadalcanal and New Caledonia until he returned to the United States in November 1945 and was assigned to the Army Ground Forces in Washington.

General Murray was retired for physical disability 30 Sept. 1946, with the rank of Major General.

Besides his wife, General Murray is survived by a son, Lt. Col. Arthur M. Murray, who has been stationed at West Point and was on leave with the family at the time of General Murray's death, and a daughter, Ann, the wife of Lt. Col. Robert W. Van de Velde, Assistant Military Attaché at Athens.

Maj. Charles W. Schnabel, USA-Ret.

Maj. Charles Warren Schnabel, USA-Ret., 37, died 24 July at the Presbyterian Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa., following a serious operation. Private funeral services were conducted 27 July with interment following in Mt. Lebanon Cemetery, Pittsburgh.

Major Schnabel was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy with the Class of 1934. He was originally commissioned a 2d Lieutenant in the Cavalry but transferred February, 1936, to the Corps of Engineers. He attended Cornell University in 1937-38 where he received a degree of Master of Science in Civil Engineering. He also attended the Engineer School at Ft. Belvoir, Va. Major Schnabel served with the 6th Cavalry at Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga.; the 9th Engineers, Ft. Riley, Kans.; 5th Engineers, Ft. Belvoir, Va.; 18th Engineers, Ft. Devens, Mass.; Ft. Benning, Ga.; Ft. Logan, Colo.; Camp McCoy Wis.; Vancouver Barracks, Wash., and the 37th Engineers, Camp Bowie, Texas.

Major Schnabel was retired in June, 1943, for physical disability resulting from a serious illness. Since retirement he had served on the staff of the Civil Engineering Department, University of Pittsburgh.

Although illness cut short the Army career of this brilliant young officer, he had firmly entrenched himself in the hearts and minds of the many officers and enlisted men with whom he served. He was a man of high moral principle, of unflinching courage and of a steadfast devotion to duty. These characteristics, coupled with his natural charm, his kindness and his willingness to help any or all who were in need of assistance will endear him forever to those who knew him.

Surviving are his wife, the former Elsie Lewis, and his daughter, Susan Lee, age five, who reside at 330 Hazel Drive, Pittsburgh 13, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. E. J. Blanning of Youngstown, Ohio.

Col. Charles Bryan, USA

Funeral services for Col. Charles Bryan, USA, 49, were held 25 July at his birthplace, Parkersburg, W. Va. He died of a heart attack the previous week in his quarters at Quarry Heights, C. Z.

Colonel Bryan, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Class of '18, and a veteran of 30 years' service, had been stationed in the Canal Zone during the past year as Assistant Chief of Staff G-4, Caribbean Defense Command. With the activation of the overall unified theater headquarters, Caribbean Command, he was named Director of Budget.

Prior to his assignment in the Canal Zone, Colonel Bryan had been assigned to the Office of the Director of the Budget, War Department. During the war he served with the Fourth and Fifteenth Armies. He was a graduate of the Command and General Staff School, the Cavalry School and the Quartermaster Motor Transport School.

For his services, Colonel Bryan had been awarded the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Bronze Star Medal. He had also been presented the French Croix de Guerre with Palm.

Surviving are his wife and seven-year-old son, Charles, Jr.

Col. Leroy A. Rainey, USAF

Col. Leroy A. Rainey, USAF, was killed 16 July while en route to spend his 37th birthday with his family in San Antonio, Texas, when his plane exploded at a high altitude over Orange, Va.

Military services were held at the Ft. Sam Houston Chapel with burial in the National Cemetery 20 July. Last rites were performed by Chaplain (Col.) Ora L. Cohee, USA-Ret., assisted at the memorial service by the Rev. Albert P. Shirkey, pastor of Travis Park Methodist Church, San Antonio.

At the time of his death, Colonel Rainey was on duty in Washington with the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He had an outstanding record in World War II having commanded the 97th Heavy Bombardment group during the air invasions of Sicily and Italy. He was awarded 16 decorations, including the Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross (O.L.C.), Soldier's Medal, Air Medal (9 O.L.C.), and the Purple Heart. He had amassed more than 5,000 flying hours, 300 of which were in combat in 55 missions.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pauline Lash Rainey and two daughters Paula Jo and Sandra Le, who reside at 310 Roslyn Ave., San Antonio; his mother, Mrs. Edna S. Rainey of San Antonio, and his father, Clyde Rainey of Corpus Christi.

Robert Weakley Brahan Terrell

The Hon. Robert Weakley Brahan Terrell, for many years presiding Judge of Bexar County, Texas, died of a heart attack in San Antonio, 22 July. A native of Texas, he was born 2 April 1889 in San Antonio.

Judge Terrell was a brother of Maj. Gen. Henry Terrell, USA-Ret., of San Antonio, and of Mrs. Frank Royer Keefe, wife of Brig. Gen. Keefe, USA-Ret. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Terrell, and grandson of the late Brig. Gen. Charles Milton Terrell, and great grandson of General John Brahan of Tennessee and Alabama, and of General Robert Weakley, one of the founders of Nashville and a prominent soldier of the Revolutionary War.

Judge Terrell was a Captain in the 360th Infantry, 90th Division, during World War I, and was called into active service during World War II. He was a graduate of the old West Texas Military Academy and Cumberland University Law School, Lebanon, Tenn. His grandfather moved to Texas in 1868 and bought a ranch, which is now Terrell Hills, an exclusive residential section of San Antonio.

Surviving are his wife, Ilee S. Terrell; a daughter, Mrs. Burleson Smith; and a son, Robert Weakley Brahan, Jr., a student at St. Mary's College.
